Brian Wardyga

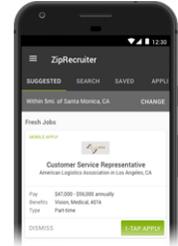

Associate Professor of Communication at Lasell College

Greg was a student, advisee, and staff member of WLAS under my leadership. He excelled in all of these areas and I highly recommend him to your program.

Stephen M. Kessinger

Director of Government and Educational Media at NewTV

As an intern during the summer of 2017, Greg displayed a high degree of integrity, responsibility and ambition. He demonstrated great skill in working independently as well as part of a team. I greatly valued his approach and consider him to be a top intern of record at our organization.

Imry Halevi

Director of Multimedia and Production at Harvard University

During his time at Harvard, Greg assisted in production of live broadcasts on ESPN3, regional TV networks, and the Ivy League Network. Additionally, Greg worked on venue video board productions, helping to provide game-day entertainment at Harvard events.

Throughout his time at Harvard, Greg consistently showed dedication to the job, and a passion for production and broadcasting. Greg is a quick learner, often assisted others on the team with their responsibilities, and always demonstrated maturity, responsibility, patience and attention to detail.

I am confident that Greg's experience and passion for the industry would serve him well in any position, and would greatly contribute to those working with him.

Lauren Anderson

Assistant Professor of Communication at Lasell College

Greg is an exceptionally hard worker and gives 110% to everything that he does. He is incredibly talented as a young sports communication professional, both behind and in front of the camera. One particular project that Greg completed for my class was a sports talk show, in which he addressed critical issues in the sports world, such as the social and economic impacts of a country hosting the World Cup. In my professional opinion, Greg would make a great addition to any organization.

Marie C. Franklin

Associate Professor of Journalism at Lasell College

As a student in my Intro to Journalism class, Greg impressed me as an individual with strong speaking and writing skills, as well as a very professional work ethic. He is highly motivated, a leader among his peers, and a facile communicator who can craft messages across the platforms. He also brings technical video production and editing skills to the table.
